The plaintiff Elliot, claims to have held a contract, assigned to him by C J Cook, for building the road to the California line after which he went into partnership with Holladay and others to furnish means to carry out the contract but they failed to do so. Also C J Cook against Ben Holladay & Co, Ben Holliday, Thaddeus R Brooks, Milton S Latham, C Temple Emmet, Wm Norris and others praying for a judgment of $9,305 300. He (Elliot) was acting as Chief Engineer. Subsequently he went East to endeavor to arrange the business and was disappointed and harassed in every way by defendants who finally, in November last took possession of all the effects of the firm and stopped the work. The case of Dennis Gunn, who shot Edward Murphy, was resumed in the Fourth District Court this afternoon. District Attorney Byrne stated that several persons had been to him and represented that the young girl, whom it is alleged Murphy seduced was not previously of the immaculate character which had been represented, or, in other words, was not the victim of Murphy. Under these circumstances, he desired to have more information on the subject and desired further time. Judge Morrison desired to know if in case it was shown that she was the victim of Murphy, as alleged, he would consider that fact such a defense to the charge of murder as would call for his admission to bail. Mr. Byrne said that in the eye of the law it was murder but juries could not be found to convict, and it might be advisable for the court to take that fact into consideration. Mr Campbell, for the defendant, said they consented to the fullest investigation into the previous character of the girl, but Mr Byrne did not want to attack it only to judge of the probable extent of excitement under which the defendant was acting and the effect it would have upon the jury. CORINNE, Jan 8—The following telegram was received from Graytown, Colorado, on the 7th: About one o clock this morning the Barlow House, considered one of the finest hotels in the Territory, took fire from a defective flue and was soon totally destroyed. A high wind was blowing at the time directly towards the business portion of this city, setting fire to a hotel and stable. It was only by continual watchfulness and the utmost exertions on the part of the firemen that the stables were saved and the fire kept from spreading. Loss, $20,000, mostly covered by insurance

Pixley on the War

Frank Pixley, a noted Californian, now in Europe in a letter from Brussels, November 29th, writes

Having been ever since the first of October hovering around, I have had rare opportunities for observing the changes of public sentiment in France. I have seen the formation of the Army of the Loire, and I have great expectations from it. I was not disappointed when it whipped the army of Von der Tann, and I shall be disappointed if, in the future history of this war it does not give a good account of itself in desperate and heroic fighting. I shall be disappointed if the army of General Keratry does not yet, in spite of some small reverses achieve great things. General Amnesty

THE PRESIDENT [illegible] ON THE SUBJECT [illegible]

WASHINGTON [illegible] yesterday that [illegible] said [illegible] any reference to that [illegible] them was accidental [illegible] have stated his views fr[illegible] on but in the hurry [illegible] in time to send it [illegible] to do so. His purpose [illegible] in the first place to the general [illegible] prev[illegible] alent in the [illegible] number of people are disfranchised [illegible] by the Fourteenth Amendment [illegible] legislation of Congress. The [illegible] has been fostered by the Democratic newspapers, is wholly an error, for [illegible] no man has been deprived of the [illegible] the action of Congress or by [illegible] of a Constitutional Amendment. All disfranchisement has been by virtue of laws enacted by the Southern States themselves through their Legislatures for which Congress is in no way responsible. This fact the President thinks ought to be more generally [illegible]

He proposed in the second [illegible] to have discussed the propriety of removing the disqualifications from holding office imposed by the Fourteenth Amendment. His view is that the people of the South ought first to accept the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments and give evidence that they fully acknowledge their validity, before asking for amnesty under the provisions of the first of these Amendments. The only power Congress has to grant amnesty is by virtue of the authority conferred by the Fourteenth Amendment and so long as the Democrats at the South resist that Amendment and deny its validity it is manifestly inconsistent for them to ask for a removal of disqualifications under its provisions. Until these Amendments are acknowledged and respected as binding the President thinks the sentiment of the country will be averse to amnesty, but when the attitude of the late rebels changes in this respect he believes that a sweeping amnesty should be promptly accorded by Congress. The President expresses his regret that he omitted to set these views forth in his message as it was his full intention to have done

Swamp Lands—A Huge Job

It is asserted that even before the act relating to swamp lands which passed the Legislature at the recent session received the signature of the Governor, applications for many thousand acres were filed by individuals of the ring who were instrumental in framing the act and securing its passage. The nature of the law and the object of its enactment are pointedly described in a single sentence by one who has given close attention to the matter. The law, says he, "gives the land to the first applicants and the framers were first to apply." The whole of the Klamath Lake country is now covered with claims or applications under the act, and even the Indian Reservation there is included in tracts which speculators and grabbers have undertaken to get possession of. The law which was passed at their dictation, was, of course supposed to be well adapted to the purpose to which it is intended. There is however, a serious obstacle in the way of those who expected to obtain under it most of the swamp lands of the State and who even intended to go further than this and secure large tracts under the name of overflowed lands, which are properly not lands of that description. Having full control of the State government in all its departments, it was believed by them that they could easily consummate all the jobs they should desire. But in this case the General Government will have something to say, and we shall be mistaken if it do not turn out to [illegible] more difficult for greedy speculators to accomplish their designs under the act which [illegible] contrived to put through the [illegible] than they supposed when they [illegible] the scheme.

[illegible] communication published a few days [illegible] Statesman, this subject is reviewed [illegible] and able manner. The writer answers those who claim that under the existing [illegible] applications for swamp lands may be [illegible] with the Board of State Land Commissioners whose duty it is to act at once upon them by saying that no application for the lands can be valid, for the reason that the State [illegible] possession of the lands, not [illegible] a description of them. We [illegible] length the following passages from [illegible] communication referred to:

[illegible] act of Congress granting to Oregon the swamp lands within its limits, bears date of Sept [illegible] gress cannot give what the nation [illegible] all swamp lands disposed [illegible] Government no matter in what way or [illegible] to that date, are excluded [illegible] applications for Lake la Biche, [illegible] included in donation claims, [illegible] The act of Sept 12, 1860, re[illegible] two years from that [illegible] the Secretary of the Interior [illegible] swamps [illegible] which the public surveys were not [illegible] the Governor did not [illegible] swamp [illegible] included in the [illegible] to Sept 12, 1860, [illegible] the State and no more be[illegible] Sept 12, 1860, had [illegible] Congress may and [illegible] such of them as may not be [illegible] until such re grant is made the [illegible] to do with them than it has with [illegible] and dry land.

[illegible] swamps surveyed since Sept 12, 1860, [illegible] surveyed, the State has an un[illegible] failure of the Secretary of [illegible] officer) to report to the [illegible] the swamp lands as they were surveyed [illegible] the right of the State, has [illegible] possession.

[illegible] swamp lands in those parts of the State [illegible] is not only not in posses[illegible] of Sept. 12, 1860, never [illegible] of them until the public [illegible] are extended over them, which may not [illegible] many years to come.

Therefore the State has no official evidence, [illegible] that it ever will possess a single [illegible] swamp land.

The Federal Government has given the swamp lands to the State but it owns the dry land [illegible] separation must be [illegible] before they can [illegible] and shape [illegible] belonging [illegible] respectively either [illegible] may make [illegible] the other. The [illegible] How the exact dividing line between the dry land and the wet—it may be a compromise [illegible] those mostly wet going to the State those mostly dry remaining with the Government the original proprietor [illegible] making a deed to the State for its [illegible] With this deed or patent the State comes [illegible] the swamp lands within its lim[illegible]

[illegible] having possession, cannot give [illegible] having no title, cannot make title [illegible] absolute.

When the State has surveyed or segregated the swamp lands to which it is entitled or has ac[illegible] them from the Federal Government and received a patent for them, it will [illegible] deal with applicants, and not [illegible]

[illegible] will find plenty to do to accomplish [illegible] the next two years, and as no individual rights will be vested under the obnoxious [illegible] of this law, it is to be hoped another [illegible] will remove them.

[illegible] trust and believe that the Surveyor [illegible] will prepare himself to take such action [illegible] matter as the circumstances and necessities of the case may require. Much may depend on his action. Through him the General Government will obtain its official information as to the nature of the lands. It is to be expected that attempts will be made by operators who got the present State law passed, and who are "inside" with the Board to obtain for purposes of speculation large tracts of land, which are mostly dry, and which should be reserved for homesteads for actual settlers. The Surveyor General will probably have it in his power to check much of the mischief intended by this ring, who are attempting to plunder in every direction, and we are confident he will look out for the interests both of the Government and of the settler.

The Legislature at its late session was fruitful in jobs and this is one of them. That body was guided throughout by the scent and instinct of plunder. Professing great regard for the people it legislated exclusively for the benefit of rings and jobbers. It has brought reproach upon the State as the first Legislature to yield to corrupt influences and go in for general plunder. The people of Oregon deserve to be despoiled by the corrupt and piratical crew who controlled the last Legislature, if they ever elect another Legislature like it.

Whoever hears a word from the United States Senator elect? These are important times for Portland and for Oregon. People throughout the State are wide awake and taking hold of great problems and enterprises. Questions of the greatest moment involving the future growth, development and prosperity of Oregon are engaging the attention of every citizen who has a forecasting mind. Existing conditions, possible combinations, future probabilities, the changes that are now taking place in the life of the State and its business activities, and the greater changes that are certain to come, are being discussed everywhere. But who hears from the Senator elect on these subjects? Rather who cares to hear from him? Nobody. He has found oblivion already. The reason is that the people of Oregon know that he can be of no use to them in great matters like these. He was elected because he had always been an extreme partisan and he can represent only the extreme partisanship that elected him.

The Common Council of Salem have contracted for the construction of water works.

The Linn County Agricultural Society have elected the following Board of Directors for the year: A Hackleman, N Price, A Parker, D Froman, Dr Griffin, M Lupu, J B Comley.

W H Odell Esq, recently appointed Surveyor General of Oregon, has given the bonds in the sum required preparatory to his entering on his official duties. We learn that he will go into the office at once.

Of Albany markets the Register says: There is no change to mention except in the article of wheat. The general price seems to be 90 cents although one lot brought 95 cents. Quite a number of our farmers are still holding on to their wheat avowing their determination not to sell until they can realize one dollar per bushel. Considering the heavy weather of the week, business has been very fair.

From the Farmer: Last Sunday Rev P S Knight, Pastor of the Congregational Church in Salem issued a New Year's address to the members and friends of the Church, a copy of which is before us. From it we learn the following facts: The present membership is 102—the sum of $300 has been raised for the pastor's support and about $400 for other purposes since the first of April last—the Sunday congregations have averaged 150—average attendance at Sunday School 90—during the past year, two persons have been admitted to membership, and three members have died.

From the Dallas Republican: We were shown to day the papers, issued from headquarters at Washington, passing free over the general stage, boats and railroad lines from this place to New York city and back, our esteemed friend and townsman L A Robb, for the purpose of receiving from the Government free of charge an artificial leg, in place of one lost by him while fighting in the South to maintain and perpetuate that Government which has given us the proud name of Americans and citizens of the United States. May he have a safe and pleasant journey, receive the best limb ever manufactured and return safely to enjoy the society of his numerous friends.

A son of Hon B F Harding's, aged about 16 years, living near Fairfield, in this county, says the Salem Farmer, was shot on Sunday evening last by Baptiste Gobin a half breed. The dogs had treed a fox near Mr Harding's house, and he with his son, went out and shot it, the body lodging in the tree. The boy was climbing the tree to throw the fox down, when Gobin, coming up, saw the boy in the tree, and thinking, perhaps, it was the fox, fired his musket. The charge, duck shot, took effect in young Harding's breast, some of which it is thought went entirely through him. Gobin was drunk. At last accounts, young Harding was resting easy, and it was hoped the wound would not prove fatal. We learn the above facts from Mr. G B. Miller, a neighbor to Mr Harding.

The $100,000 Subsidy.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

I attended the meeting at the Court House Saturday evening and was painfully impressed with the great and unfortunate lack of judgment and a proper comprehension of their subject, and of what was befitting and necessary to the occasion, displayed by most of the speakers who addressed the audience. The assemblage of citizens was, as you know, very large, and was composed of the best among us, drawn thither by the expectation and the wish to hear stirring words, and convincing argument in support of the proposed subsidy. Probably two-thirds of the audience were men of moderate property, good citizens who love the town and are willing and anxious to do their duty in the way of advancing its prosperity if they can be properly convinced of the necessity and wisdom of any given scheme, men who are not quite able to see that the plan under consideration is the wise and necessary thing to be done, but willing to be convinced. Such men did not want to hear the threatening indifference displayed by the up-country speakers, who were kind enough to tell us that their only interest in a railroad would be such a one as would run through or near their own and their neighbors property, and increase its value, that as Portland is now considerable of a city it would suit them as well for a terminus as any other, but they had no choice, and if Portland is not wide-awake enough to see that it is for her interest to secure the handling of their products, they would have no tear to shed, and would welcome with equal joy the building of a road which would run by and leave her "out in the cold." How utterly ill timed and inappropriate were such statements as these! and they even seemed to me—in view of the place and occasion—to be impertinent, and I am sure that their effect was damaging instead of helpful to the object which I suppose they intended to further.

And a still greater faux pas, if possible, was committed, and the cooling effect of preceding remarks intensified, by one of our oldest and most intelligent citizens, who ought to have been able to clearly and forcibly state the situation to his audience, getting up and telling them that while for sundry good and sufficient reasons to him he at first opposed the plan of giving Mr Holladay anything, he now thought it necessary to do so because as Portland was not a natural commercial center and had "not one natural advantage for it, it became us to pour out our money to remedy, if possible, the mistake of those who solicited it, or of nature in not having some of those advantages where Portland is placed—he did not clearly tell us which—but some other point more favored in these respects (he did not tell us where it was to be found) should quickly rob us of the fine occupation which had been so long quietly and easily pursued by our merchants of 'selling goods to get money to get more goods, to get more money,' etc, etc. He dilated on the "plowing" which it was necessary for ships and steamboats to do to get up and down our river, and for wagons to reach us by land, and other points equally inopportune, absurd and fallacious, and when he finished, if I had not previously given the subject some thought, and been able to see his mistakes, I should have felt that it was quite useless for us to think of trying to keep Portland alive, and that we might as well accept our inevitable destiny without attempting to struggle against so many obstacles. And if I had come to the meeting a little wavering but intending to subscribe if I should hear good reasons for doing so, his words would have deterred me from it, and such, I venture to say was the actual effect on many of those present.

But Judge Shattuck is wrong. Portland has one, and it is a great natural advantage. The place was selected for settlement because it was the most—in fact, about the only point where ships from the ocean and wagons from the interior could meet and exchange their burdens. It is the highest point accessible to shipping and it is therefore the best because it is the cheapest point where ships and railroads can meet and make their transfers. The obstructions in one view are such only as are surmountable by a small annual expenditure—not a tithe of what would be required to pay the increased cost of land transportation to and from some point below these obstructions and if our two valley roads center here, bringing, as the consummation will, the branch line of the Northern Pacific Railroad here also, there will not in my opinion, be any chance of formidable rivalry from any place below us.

Yet it will not do to rely wholly upon this great natural advantage. We must have a prudent foresight to enable us to comprehend the possibility of its being neutralized by the turning away from us through insufficient encouragement the investment of capital among us, and we must have a liberal public spirit that will prompt us to do and give when and what is necessary to the furtherance of any enterprise which promises—as does the one under consideration—to supplement and assist the great natural advantages by greater artificial ones.

Portland's real danger, however lies near at home. It is in allowing all the roads before mentioned to center on the opposite side of the river, which would be the case if Mr Holladay—as he proposes to do, I believe, if this subsidy is not raised—crosses the river with the West Side Road at some point near Milwaukie or Oswego and then join the East Side line, coming to East Portland. This course would leave him without any interest of importance in Portland because he would not get the railroad blocks in the lower part of the city and would leave him free—in fact would impose the necessity upon him—to give all his efforts, energy and influence to the object of attracting to East Portland the whole business of this valley, and this would not be so difficult a thing as may be supposed. He has bought largely of real estate over there and he has laid out a town on it. Seated as it would be just in the center of the web of roads radiating to and tapping all the country which now trade with Portland it would seem at once to a stranger coming here with a large capital to go into business to be the most convenient and economical side of the river to establish himself upon. If he was a man of enterprise—and they who come here henceforth will be such—he would naturally conclude that while the large stock he would carry would be likely to attract trade on either side, it would be more sure to do so if he placed it where it would first intercept the buyer and where he could more conveniently, speedily and economically receive and ship his goods. These reflections aided by Mr Holladay's influence and the present cheaper price of ground for building on, would decide the matter. This establishment would quickly influence that of others; hotels and other accommodation would rapidly follow, and we of this side, would awake to the unpleasant fact of seeing our trade desert us, and of the necessity of either going over to our successful rival or, too late, of adoption of some expensive mode of treatment to win back our waning prospect with the bitter reflection that the small sum of $100,000, expended at the golden moment would have kept us from such chagrin and discomfiture.

But on the other hand, if the West Side road comes into Portland, Mr. Holladay gets the said "railroad blocks," which not only at once becomes of immense value but furnish abundant room and conveniences for the building of depots and machine shops for two roads, and better dockage for ships than on the other side. It therefore seems not improbable that the securing of one road on this side would lead to the centering of both the valley roads here, for it will readily be seen that the river could be cheaply bridged at the narrow point above here, on which the East Side road could be crossed, thus bringing everything here instead of taking it to the opposite side. The arguments in favor of the theory of this being the final consummation are numerous but I will not trespass further on your indulgence by enumerating them, as a little thought on the part of any one who chooses to consider it, will make them apparent.

The only one against it—the fact that Mr Holladay's investment in real estate in East Portland would not be so valuable—is not important, because the growth of this side will continue to increase values over there, besides the Northern Pacific has got to come in somewhere, and we can, perhaps, afford to let it stop on the other side if we hold both the other roads.

I sat down to write about the speaking at the Court House only. I will close by expressing the hope that if, as now seems probable, further meetings of citizens will be necessary before the $100,000 is raised, some speaker equal to the occasion will appear, who, with a brain acute enough to comprehend and digest the subject, will find suitable words with which to force it home to the minds of his hearers.

A New York dispatch of December 29th, says: During the past twenty four hours there have been flying rumors of Vanderbilt's serious illness at his house. He is reported as dangerously ill of inflammation of the bowels from catching cold, and the bears insist that he cannot live. No one seems to know whether the story is true or false, but its circulation adds to the general uneasiness and distrust of the street. Wall street is very feverish to day, and so agitated with rumors of failures and frauds of firms and corporations that confidence seems shattered. Vanderbilt's death would carry down stocks to ruinous rates, and spread financial disaster.

A dispatch from Washington December 28th, reports this: The United States gunboat Nipsic is only intended to act as a dispatch boat to the Darien Expedition, and her detention at Fortress Monroe does not in any way interfere with the operations of the expedition proper, which sailed from New York some time since on board the steamer Guard. This vessel has probably arrived in the Gulf of Darien, where work will be commenced in the explorations of the Atratro and Truando routes. These routes have been thoroughly surveyed, and there is very little work left for Commander Selfridge—no more, perhaps, than he can accomplish before the rainy season sets in. The recent exploration of the Isthmus of Darien has not produced very satisfactory results, from the fact that all the routes surveyed followed old Indian trails, which are known to pass over the highest ground. It is generally believed that away from these Indian trails may be found valleys, transversely dividing the Cordilleras, or of at least lower ridges than any yet surveyed. The very limited time at the disposal of Commander Selfridge in his recent survey of the Isthmus rendered it impossible for him to make a complete survey of all the proposed routes.

When the Legislature was in session last fall ex Senator Nesmith happened to be at Salem. The Herald accused him of an attempt to disorganize the Democratic party, and sneeringly told him he had better be at home over in Polk, "feeding his swine." Mr Nesmith gets a chance in his letter to the railroad meeting to fling the sneer back at the Herald and that paper is constrained to publish it.

At the railroad meeting on Saturday evening a greater degree of interest was evinced than we have ever seen manifested here for any similar enterprise. It is now considered certain that the $100,000 will be subscribed and the terminal depot of the west side road secured in this city. Portland, it may be relied upon, will not manifest an indifference to the great enterprises that are springing up around her.

THE RAILROAD MEETING.

IMMENSE CROWD AT THE COURT HOUSE—SPEECHES BY MESSRS. HAYDEN, SHATTUCK, DAYTON, CAPLES AND OTHERS—LETTER FROM EX-SENATOR NESMITH—SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE $100,000 SUBSIDY.

Pursuant to adjournment and notice from the Board canvassing Committee, our citizens met at the Court House, Saturday evening, to hear the report of the committee and speeches from a number of gentlemen who had been announced to speak on the subject of the railroad subscription. The Court House was filled with people, many of them interested in the success of the subscription, others attracted by curiosity, but all interested in hearing the speeches.

MR. STITZEL'S REPORT.

Mr. Stitzel called the meeting to order and stated that since the last meeting, the committee had effected but little in the way of swelling the subscription list. They had made but little effort, because it had been thought best to await the result of this meeting. The presence of so large an assemblage, he thought, signified the general and living interest the people of Portland took in this matter, and he believed that in a short time it would be announced that Portland had subscribed her $100,000. Many people wondered why the subscription lagged, and why certain men of wealth had not put down anything; but he was prepared now to say that certain complications had existed which had now been removed. He was authorized to say that the difficulty between the O. S. N. Co. and Ben Holladay had been amicably adjusted, and that it was expected the gentlemen who had been in one way or another connected with that embroglio would subscribe $25,000. During the past week, the committee had conversed with a number of people who had given assurance of help. One lady had called on him and pledged $250; another $150; and there were many small tax-payers who expressed a willingness to give as liberally as their means would allow. On the other hand, there were a few large property owners who would not subscribe a cent. He instanced one (without calling the name, though everybody knows who he is) who owns several hundred acres of land adjoining the city plat, to whom the City Council had voted to give $32,000 for 40 acres of land for a public park. He stated as a belief that the city would not consummate the purchase.

LETTER FROM EX-SENATOR NESMITH.

Mr. Nesmith had been announced as one of the speakers, but did not appear. Instead, the following letter from him was read by the Secretary, [illegible] Ferry:

Dixie, Polk County, Oregon,
January 3, 1871.

[illegible] Stitzel, Esq.—My Dear Sir: I have [illegible] favor of the 1st instant, inviting me to be present at a meeting of the citizens of Portland [illegible] inst., to take into consideration the proposition of Mr. Holliday to build the "West Side" Railroad.

I regret that the health of my family is such as [illegible] my acceptance of your kind invitation. And, I as a farmer of the interior, should feel some hesitancy about the propriety of attempting to advise the good people of the present metropolis of the State upon a question of such paramount interest to themselves as that to be decided [illegible] meeting [illegible] next Saturday evening. [illegible] in unhackneyed terms about [illegible] "grease," it is sufficient to [illegible] that [illegible] district of country in the [illegible] and so rich in all natural [illegible] as the counties of Washington, Yamhill, Polk, Benton and the western portion of Lane, which will be traversed by a west side road, and which [illegible] now provided with [illegible] facilities.

The [illegible] of [illegible] embraced within the above named counties, with its climate and productive capacity, would in any other country be sufficient to constitute a nation or principality, whose trade of itself would build up a great city. We, the citizens of these counties, are strictly agricultural, and but few are fortunate as to possess great wealth. Like people similarly situated we want railroads, but we, unaided, cannot build them. Our industry, and the trade resulting from it, while we [illegible] our products by ox wagons, has made the bricks, carried them up, mixed the mortar, and laid up the walls which constitute your city. If you have derived these benefits from our infant industry and trade what may you expect from the efforts of our mature manhood? The incessant labor of nearly seven years which I have bestowed upon one section of land in Polk county would not, with the land itself, now purchase one hundred feet square of Portland, whose site I looked upon as a "howling [illegible]" on the 23d day of October, 1843.

[illegible] that your meeting and those who compose it will reflect upon the sources of the wealth of your city, and whose industry supports it. All [illegible] wanting is to open up the rich West Side counties and give you their undivided trade [illegible] is the petty bonus of one hundred [illegible] dollars. I can name half a dozen men [illegible] city whose wealth would be enhanced by [illegible] the whole amount, and cannot help [illegible] "Why stand ye all the day idle?"

In common with the citizens of the West Side counties I feel a deep interest in the question to [illegible] at your meeting. Those who will [illegible] that meeting are justly presumed to [illegible] their own interests, and understand their own business better than I do; yet I trust that [illegible] will not entirely disregard the advice of one [illegible] to confine his efforts to [illegible] I say that in my humble opinion it [illegible] the citizens of Portland to take [illegible] a great enterprise, [illegible] expect to reap [illegible] benefits.

The people [illegible] the West Side counties [illegible] or the exports [illegible] and from whence [illegible] supply their necessary [illegible] we will find to some direction. [illegible] indifferent upon this subject, and [illegible] that the sources of her trade, wealth and prosperity are contained within her "corporate limits" we shall be compelled to leave her [illegible] her idols," and seek an alliance in some other quarter, where our trade, industry and wealth will be more readily recognized and appreciated. It would perhaps be in bad taste for us who ask favors to indulge in threats, and, without placing ourselves in that category, we of the West Side tender you the trade of nearly half the State, with all its golden wealth, upon condition that you will aid us to reach your [illegible].

Other points now desire our trade, and it is [illegible] us easy of access as Portland. [illegible] your meeting will in some degree determine that question.

Portland in the present crisis holds her destinies in her own hands, and I doubt not that her citizens will act with a full appreciation of their responsibilities.

I am, in haste,
Yours, very truly,
J. W. NESMITH.

REMARKS BY BEN HAYDEN.

Mr. Hayden said he was not much acquainted with railroad business, but he was a friend of railroads, and was ready to aid by voice or vote, or in other way, the construction of railroads in the State. The matter of the subsidy was a [illegible] one with Portland, but a railroad for the West Side counties," was a matter in which he and all the people were interested. He had come to this country nineteen years ago, and had camped on the site of this city when it was a wilderness, and had taken the bark from the trees of the forest to make his camp fire. Now a city stands here, with fine blocks of brick buildings and miles of [illegible]. Who had contributed to all this growth and wealth? The counties of the Willamette Valley. The people of the West Side counties who could live without Portland, had contributed to build up this city. The city could not grow and prosper without those counties. It was then a matter of policy for Portland to secure a continuation of that trade with the interior from which it had thus far grown. This interior country did not depend upon Portland, and if Portland did not take steps to make itself the center of trade, some other point might spring up and steal away the business which had made Portland wealthy. If the people of this city wished to maintain its rank as the metropolis of the State it must not neglect its opportunities. He had supported when in the late Legislature, all the bills for the railroads, or for other enterprises for the developement of the country. He supported and voted for the $300,000 subsidy, because he believed it constitutional; because he believed the people wanted it, and because he believed the people would be benefitted by it, not only here, but all through the Western counties of the Valley. He still believed the same about that measure. But the proposition now is to raise one hundred thousand dollars by voluntary subscription. There could be no question about the constitutionality of that. Why had the money not been subscribed? He thought he could name a few men who could raise the money easier than the people of Albany could raise $50,000. It was a small sum compared with the capital owned here. If the city did not bestir itself and secure the railroad terminus, some other place would get it. There are some men who object, because the money is to be given to Ben. Holladay; but he did not care who was to get the money, if the railroad is built. He had been opposed politically to Ben. Holladay, and had assisted to defeat his candidate for the U. S. Senate; but he had no objection to Holladay as a business man. Politics and business are two different things, and he was just as willing that Holladay should build the road as any other man. He believed he was the only man who would build it. He had built the East Side road, and built it well. He would not oppose him in business when it was every man's interest to aid him. He would not cut off his nose to spite his face.

He believed that if the road were built, land would rise in value from the present prices to $10 or $50 an acre. A similar result had followed the building of the East Side road, and he knew that the lands were as good in quality on the West as on the East Side. The building of the twenty miles which this subsidy would secure, would insure the building of the road through Washington, Yamhill, Polk, Benton and Lane, which were among the best and richest agricultural counties of the State. He did not appear here as the advocate of the interests of these counties, but he would say that if Portland helped them, they would help Portland. If Portland would not help herself, a rival would spring up to which those counties would transfer their trade. All that seemed necessary then, was for all to pull together; the railroad would be built, and Portland would remain the metropolis of Oregon and the second city of the Pacific slope. [Great applause.]

JUDGE SHATTUCK'S REMARKS.

Judge Shattuck said he had been classed among the indifferent ones, as he had always contended that a railroad should be built upon its own merits. He had been opposed to Holladay politically and had exerted himself to prevent things from getting into their present shape. He had been a good deal like Daniel in the lion's den—Holladay didn't care for Shattuck and Shattuck didn't care for Holladay. But now, under all the circumstances, and looking at the whole thing in a business way, he thought it better to fall in with the proposition now pending. Portland had but few natural advantages, and its growth had been as much the result of accident as anything. It was the policy of the city to make as much as possible of the advantages she now has. It was not always the place which had the most natural advantages that succeeds. Chicago, with fewer natural advantages than St. Louis, had, by securing a concentration of railroads, acquired a commercial supremacy which could defy all competitors. So Portland might by judicious and reasonable action secure a similar supremacy on the north coast. Without a concentration of railroads she would, however, lose her position. A straight line from Puget Sound to the interior of the valley would leave Portland far on one side, and the point of concentration would be down the river. But railroads to Portland were necessary to keep real estate even at its present prices. His objection to the subsidy had been that he thought the Government had given enough. But he had observed two things about Ben Holladay—while he looked out for himself, he had also benefitted somebody else. This railroad was a necessity; Holladay would build it, and he therefore would favor the subsidy and would contribute his share of it. [Applause.]

SEVERAL OTHER SPEAKERS

Addressed the meeting, among whom were Dr. J. R. Bayley, of Corvallis, Judge Marquam and J. F. Caples, Esq. All coincided in the opinion that this city could not hold its supremacy unendangered without an effort; that railroad concentration elsewhere would be Portland's ruin; and that the time had arrived for decisive action. Their arguments, in the main, were in support of those already urged by Messrs. Hayden and Shattuck.

A CHALLENGE.

At the close of Mr. Caples' remarks, a proposition was made by Messrs. J. W. Cook, P. A. Marquam, A. H. Johnson, Lloyd Brooke, Jacob Mayer, T. A. Savier, J. M. Strowbridge, J. L. Atkinson, Jacob Stitzel, Wm. Masters, Elijah Corbett and Russell & Ferry, to increase their subscriptions $100 each, provided one hundred men who had not subscribed, would come forward and put down a like sum. Several gentlemen responded to this by putting down $100 each. The proposition still remains open.

SUICIDE—A MAN HANGS HIMSELF.—About three o'clock yesterday morning a man named Charles Davis was found hanging by the neck and dead, in C. P. Bacon's Livery stable, on Second street. The deceased is a man about thirty years of age, and has been employed at the stable for nearly a year and a half. He had been on a drunken spree for three or four days early in the week, but had sobered off on Friday and during Saturday appeared to be all right. On Friday he told a friend that he intended to kill himself, but nothing was thought of it, as it was merely presumed he was in a temporary fit of "blues," as is frequently the case with men when sobering off after a drinking spree. During Saturday evening he was around with some of the other employees of the stable, and went to bed about the usual hour, in the sleeping room on the lower floor of the stable. The other man went to bed at twelve, and at that hour Davis was in bed, and apparently all right. About three o'clock the other ostler had occasion to get up and go to the rear of the barn, and in passing along between the rows of stalls, ran against something hanging down the hatch of the hay loft, and upon examination, found it to be the body of Davis. He had evidently gone into the loft soon after twelve, attached one end of a rope made of thin bale strings, to his neck and the other to the lower loop of the endless hoisting rope, and had then jumped down the hatch. His fall must have been near five feet. When found he was hanging with his feet and arms straight, as if there had been no struggle, and his body was cold, evidencing that he had done the deed very soon after midnight. An inquest was held by Coroner Thomas J. Dryer, but no evidence was elicited to account for the self murder, except the fact that he had lately been drinking to excess. He left no writing or message of any kind. But little is known of him except that he came West from Vermont. He had no family connections in this country so far as is known. Some months ago, in conversation, he stated that he was a great-grandson of General Gates, of the Revolutionary war. He was buried yesterday afternoon by Cook & Ewry, undertakers.

AMUSEMENTS.

ORO FINO THEATER.—There was a fine house at Oro Fino Saturday evening, and "The Stranger" was played in excellent and effective style. Mr. Bates' personation of the strange, sad man, was, indeed, a fine performance, and the closing scene between himself and Mrs. Haller (Mrs. Bates) was exceedingly impressive and affecting. We regret that this company will not appear again (probably) for some time. They had intended to play to-night, a benefit to Mr. Vinson, but, the management having effected an engagement with the Wellington Brothers and Sisters, the benefit has been postponed indefinitely. It may be that upon hearing from Mr. Cook, who has gone up the Columbia river, the Dramatic Company will leave for Walla Walla, while the Wellingtons will remain and occupy Oro Fino. However, this is not definitely decided upon. For the time being, the advertisements for the Dalles and points beyond are withdrawn.

The Wellingtons consist of three brothers and three sisters and they will appear to-night in a variety entertainment. They are recently from the East, and we know nothing of them save that something of their reputation has floated across the country in advance, and that they are said to be very clever indeed, in their specialties. The bill for this evening is an attractive one.

Ben. L. Norden to W. P. Doland; lot 1, block 38, Raleigh's Claim; warranty deed; consideration, $200.

A QUEER SUPERSTITION.—One of our neighbors, a man of considerable intelligence, was talking a day or two since about dogs, and remarked that one of his neighbors had a big dog which was in the habit of keeping him awake a good part of every night by the most unearthly howlings. Every time the town clock strikes the dead hours of the night, the dog rouses and goes at it. Our neighbor says he has a superstition about such things—he is thoroughly satisfied that whenever a dog howls constantly at night so as to keep him awake, there is going to be a death in that neighborhood, of some kind, even if the victim should be only a dog. It's a queer superstition, but our neighbor evidently believes it. We suggest to his neighbor that he had better take that dog in.

ST. HELENS MILL CO.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the St. Helens Mill Company, held at their office in St. Helens, on Monday, January 2d, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Directors, J. RUBBER AND LEATHER BELTING FARM WAGONS, GRASS SEEDS, ETC., ETC.

The particular attention of the Farming Community is called to our recent importation of Improved MOLINE PLOWS, greatly superior to any other Moline Plow in the Market, notwithstanding a certain firm, somewhat noted for truth and veracity—"so-called"—persist in a roaring that they are "bogus," "California made," etc.
Don't fail to call and look at one of the MOLINE PLOW Co's LATEST MAKE; and we think you will conclude with a Yamhill Farmer, who, after "looking round" and hearing the old story about bogus Molines, etc., delivered himself thusly: "Well, Myers, I'll just chance a couple of those new plows, and if they are 'bogus,' as that gassy chap above here says, I'll be d—arned if I won't take bogus in mine every time."
Next month we expect another shipment of those justly celebrated BAIN WAGONS, (Have now only a few left of the last lot,) STILL FURTHER IMPROVED over all heretofore received. It is not presumption on our part to say that they are head and shoulders above any other Farm wagon in market, in point of material, workmanship and finish, having achieved a reputation throughout the West, and wherever introduced on the Pacific, second to no other wagon. Some of the first sold here—three years ago,—have never yet had a tire re-set, and our experience has enabled us to order many changes and improvements over the ordinary make of western wagons to meet the wants and requirements of this coast.
We shall sell the BAIN WAGON at the lowest possible price for a first class wagon, and WARRANT them such, and in this connection beg to caution purchasers not to confound them with "inferior makes" that others are, or may endeavor to sell on the strength of the established reputation of the Bain manufacture, particularly after having made repeated and persistent efforts (without avail) to purchase wagons of Mr. Bain for this market.

The Perils of Political Life.

If any body supposes that a political career is happiness, he has only to read a few chapters in history, or to reflect upon the letter of the Vice-President. His political life, as we said, has been successful and distinguished, and few men who have been for eighteen years in public position have made so few enemies. It is not to be supposed, of course, that he retires from interest in public affairs nor that he intends to desert the political duties of a private citizen. But he thinks, and justly, that he has given as much of his life to public office as ought to be demanded, unless he wishes to continue in it. And in withdrawing he mentions the real sting of an honest official career, the misrepresentations which accompany it. For it is only when a man takes office, or is proposed for it, that he feels the full fury of party spirit. And never is a human being so ludicrously contemptible as when he is, not severely criticising the culpable conduct of a political opponent, but indulging party malignity. This malignity would be infinitely funny if it were not so ferocious. It is one of the chief impediments to civilization, for this, among many other reasons, that it so utterly perplexes judgment by its enormous falsehoods. The philosophers say that Nature is so intent upon certain results that she overcharges certain instincts and passions, so as to be superfluously sure of them. And this is also the law of party spirit, which burns a house down to roast a pig.

The ingenuity with which the simplest facts are distorted by party spirit into the most baleful significance is exquisitely comical. The most familiar details of life are invested with awful mystery. If a distinguished gentleman is seen going North or South or East or West—what is he going for? If he wears a red cravat—he is secretly a sans-culotte. If he wears a yellow waistcoat—he is no friend of Ireland. The distinguished Mr. Jones meets his friend Smith, and they have a chat about the weather. Party spirit publishes [illegible] fact that Mr. Jones and Mr. [illegible] closeted in earnest conversation, [illegible] indignant people to keep [illegible] and entreats the judicious [illegible] night, to look under [illegible]. The minister in [illegible] at Behring Straits [sends] a telegram, and to save money signs it Short or Long, omitting the T[obias] and Timothy. "Ah, ah!" snorts the watchful spirit of party, "behold the demoralization of foreign [illegible]. B[illegible] and [gentle]men call themselves [illegible] W[illegible], or [illegible] Wellington, or [illegible] Broghe, so this debase American, whose [soul] is eaten up by flunkeyism, and who grov[els in] spirit before the [illegible] upstarts of an [effete] despotism, signs himself Short instead [of] Tobias Short and Long, forsooth, instead [of] Timothy Long. Laugh! Out upon such [illegible]. Bless your soul, dear Cato, they [illegible] save a sixpence!"

These are [illegible] absurdities; but there are the [illegible] What a spectacle it is, that [illegible] to tax his [illegible] for the most [illegible] mis-representation of something, which [is] perfect[ly] [illegible] be simple and intelligible! TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary.

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cured for and cured, before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequently insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.

All communications strictly confidential.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 1,957. REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian.

LAND DEPARTMENT

OREGON & CALIFORNIA RAILROAD

COMPANY.

SALEM, OREGON, October 22, 1870.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT IS MADE FOR information of all concerned.

First—Congress has granted to the Company all alternate sections of the public lands designated by odd numbers within a distance of thirty miles on each side of the railroad, excepting lands to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had attached prior to the withdrawal by Government of the lands co-terminus with the first division of located line from East Portland to Jefferson, at 12 M. February 16, 1870. The second division of located line from Jefferson to a point six miles south of Roseburg, May, 1870, and from the last named point to the California line, 1870.

Second—Persons who have valid pre-emption or homestead claims to any tract on an odd numbered section can purchase the same from the Railroad Company at the Government price of $1 25 per acre in greenbacks, and upon very favorable terms, if they so desire, by filing an abandonment of their claim in the U. S. Land Office, blanks for which will be furnished by the Land Agent of the Company. Such purchase from the Company has these advantages over a purchase from the Government: The party can lease the land if necessary; he can sell the land or mortgage it, he is saved the payment of lawyers' or agents' fees, and expenses of witnesses to go to the Land Office to "prove up" his claim; he can get his title perfect in less time, and he can buy on credit at a low rate of interest.

Third—No sales will be made by the Company until the land is listed over to it by the United States Land Commissioner and Secretary of the Interior.

Purchasers are thus assured that the title they obtain is perfect.

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

[illegible] of whose organization we gave [illegible] days since, is now ready to do [illegible] without one exception, [the] [illegible] the Association, the [illegible] this city, it may be [illegible] what are its purposes, and [illegible] is proposed to conduct its [illegible] the purposes of these [illegible] all speculative in the or[illegible] the word. They are [illegible] investment upon the [illegible] value of their lands [illegible] operation of many individuals [illegible] the advance on values of all [illegible] reason of the [illegible] demand for room [illegible] The Riverside [illegible] [illegible] and situated just south of [illegible] the east side of the river, the [illegible] being about one mile from the [illegible] East Portland. The tract lies [illegible] river, half a mile [illegible] strip along the [illegible] a mile in length, the two [illegible] near the [illegible] by two [illegible] street between them,) the [illegible] figure not unlike the letter H. [illegible] of blocks, 200 feet square (with [illegible] at right angles and [illegible] the river front. The shares [illegible] $60 per share. It will be seen that [illegible] represents nearly a lot [illegible] in the 80 [illegible] lots. [illegible] shares are to be sold off at the [illegible] of the Association, [illegible] the price is [illegible] to the number of shares held. When all [illegible] taken [illegible] the Association shall determine [illegible] the choice of lots and blocks [illegible] be put up at auction to the [highest] bidder, the proceeds of such [illegible] the original price of shares or lots, to be divided equally among the whole [illegible] Thus, if a person wants a partic[ular] [illegible] and is willing to pay $100 or $500 [illegible] as the case may be [illegible] the [illegible] as his individual [illegible] premium being divided among the [illegible] shareholders. It will be seen [illegible] everything is co-operative, and [illegible] No man can make a dollar out of [illegible] making a dollar for every other [illegible] shareholder. There is no chance [illegible] be property are some [illegible] but below the first actual cost. [illegible] happen in the case of [illegible] land must be judged by [illegible] In considering the steady and [illegible] of real estate in this city and [illegible] and a [illegible] and [illegible] for the [illegible] it seems hardly [illegible] be [illegible]

In the Riverside Association all [illegible] to have been taken to guard against monopolizing of shares. No [illegible] buy more than the number of [illegible] three blocks or twenty-four lots, and votes determining the operations of the [illegible] are restricted in the same manner. The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share, which will exempt [illegible] or they may pay $1 quarterly with an [illegible] of $1 per share payable with the first in[stallment] [illegible] in this latter case to [illegible] (and only one) that assessment of $3 per share. Upon the payment of the shares in full, with the [illegible] the holder is entitled to his [illegible] proportion of all the profits [illegible] No officer of the Association [illegible] pay for services except the [illegible] $[illegible] per month, so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

[illegible] the tract lying along the river is [illegible] nearly level, about 30 to 40 feet [illegible] the water. There is no part of the front [illegible] for commanding a [illegible] view of [illegible] the river for miles up and down stream. [illegible] that part of the tract lying along the [illegible] every foot of it of the richest loam [illegible] adapted to gardening [illegible] A beautiful stream of pure water runs through [illegible] entire length of this wing of the tract, [illegible] the means of irrigation, and power sufficient [illegible] pure water to every part of the [illegible] There is not a waste lot in the [illegible] entire tract.
